

Dear Ron,

I have been recently reflecting upon my career and of the individuals that have made a positive impression on me, who helped me understand what leadership was truly about.

I value professionalism, integrity and honesty, all attributes good leaders possess. When I think of the many individuals I have had the pleasure to work with you immediately come to mind.

A good "leader" leads by example, gets to know his team and treats them with respect, someone who is approachable and open. I watched you do and be that and I am grateful I got the chance to work for you.

I have found there are a lot of "bosses" and "managers" who think they are leaders but it is rare to come across someone who understands what it is to be a leader, one who possesses the many of the qualities I have come to value.

Ron, I appreciate all that you did for me and the example you set.

Sincerely,
