Dear Ron,

Managers do things right. Leaders do the right things. When it comes to leadership, you are second to none.

You taught me the value of the journey, being present and slowing down - taking the time to pause, reflect and think. You showed me the power of psychometrics and the value of more evidence-based decision-making in building a high performing team.

Working with you for over a year, not only transformed my career, but you were the catalyst for the paradigm shift in my thinking. Making the transition from a business development mindset focused on achieving individual results, to a leadership mindset that redirected my energy and passion into people and finding uncompromising success through a team. This was not easy, but you had both the patience and experience to coach me through this growth mindset.

You are a friend, mentor and now an industry colleague who I will forever be indebted to for your wisdom, kind heart and passion for helping people realize their true potential.

I always tell others:

“Whether it is a coffee, or if you have the good fortune of working with Ron Bremner – Canada’s Number One Executive Coach – YOU won’t ever be the same again!”

Yours Sincerely,
